About ADR CELL, USLLS

The ADR Cell of USLLS, GGSIPU, is a faculty-cum-student-run forum that endeavours to foster and instill a vibrant culture of ADR amongst the student community. The cell aims to do so through meaningful engagement with field experts, and various stakeholders, while also organizing thought-provoking events. The ADR Cell is a research-oriented body that aims to disseminate information on the cutting-edge issues surrounding the field of ADR. Furthermore, the Cell has conducted various drives in the interest of legal awareness and legal aid.

About USLLS ADR Blog

The USLLS ADR Blog is an initiative of the University School of Law of Legal Studies, Guru Gobind Singh Indraprastha University. USLLS ADR Blog believes that sustained academic deliberation is required to ensure that the field of Alternative Dispute Resolution Law grows continuously, and becomes the mainstream solution to disputes. The aim is to provide a conducive platform that fosters discussions and deliberations about ADR by academicians, researchers, students and practitioners. They hope to promote the culture of ADR and acquire the viewpoints of the various stakeholders in the field. In pursuance of that vision, they have also constituted a diverse Advisory Board consisting of extremely accomplished individuals in the field of ADR so as to enable the Blog to ensure that the viewpoints of the various stakeholders are addressed through the holistic functioning of the Blog. The Blog received its Inaugural Message from HMJ Rekha Palli, Judge, High Court of Delhi. Additionally, our inaugural blog series features the articles of many esteemed legal professionals from around the world.

About Outreach & Extension Activities, GGSIPU
